DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. The indicated allowability of claims 1-3 and 8 is withdrawn in view of a more definitive review of the references to SYKES, SEIBER et al. and BULLWINKLE. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459

(1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
  2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
  3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
  4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
4. Claims 1-3 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US

Patent #4,905,428 to SYKES in view of either US Patent #5,899,036 to SEIBER et al. Or

#5,901,512 to BULLWINKLE. SYKES discloses the method of constructing a wall panel

including the steps of providing a rectangular frame (11-13) comprised of rigid channel members

(23,24,25,26,27) and lower channel member (34); providing and securing a base rail (58) in spaced relation to the lower channel member (34); providing the lower channel member (34) with a pair of recesses (41,151) in registry with a threaded member (146), column 9, lines 41-44; inherently placing the frame (11-13) and base rail in vertical orientation; inserting a tool (wrench or the like column 9, line 43) vertically into apertures (41,151); and inherently rotating the tool to level the frame (11-13). SYKES discloses the basic claimed method except for the steps of providing a pair of glide assemblies. Both SEIBER et al. and BULLWINKLE teach the step of providing a pair of glide assemblies (33),(66) respectively. Hence, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the panel of SYKES with the guide assembly of either SEIBER et al. or BULLWINKLE in order to enhance maneuverability of the panel with respect to the supporting surface. The device of SYKES is merely a threaded screw that rests upon the support surface. A screw could scratch some surfaces and become hindered by other surfaces such as carpet. Regarding claim 2, SYKES includes the step of attaching a decorative panel (54) to the frame (11-13). In reference to claim 3, SYKES further includes the step of attaching a base panel (56,58) to the lower channel (34). Hence, in considering the modification of SYKES in view of either SEIBER et al. or BULLWINKLE, the base panels (56,58) would inherently conceal the glide assemblies of either SEIBER et al. or BULLWINKLE.

Art Unit: 3635

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. Claims 4-6 stand as being rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US Patent #5,381,994 to WELCH. WELCH discloses the use of a modular wall panel including a lower channel member (30), a base rail (40) disposed beneath the lower horizontal member (30), a connector (60) including a threaded sleeve (SL); wherein the connector (60) also serves as an adjustment member. The connector/adjustment member (60) having an upper threaded portion, and the base rail includes a aperture (33,44) that can inherently receive a tool. Regarding claims 5 and 6, the lower member (30) has a base panel (10) attached thereto.

Art Unit: 3635

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 9/08/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In regards to the applicant's argument that sleeve (100), the action was in error. However the rejection has be adjusted to include the intended element number. This new rejection sets fourth that the threaded sleeve is indication as element number (SL).
